Pergola awning

The Solidare pergola awning, a name that might sound familiar. This time it applies to the pergola version of the Solidare system. This sun protection is also widely viewed as a total solution.

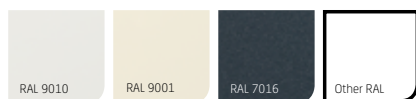

The difference between the Solidare and Piazzola pergola awning is that the Solidare fabric is guided using the zipper technology from our SolidScreen range. This implies that the fabric is completely sealed around, there is no illumination between the fabric and side guide, and the fabric is far less susceptible to sagging, even in large systems.

The Solidare pergola awning is, in fact, simply a Solidare Veranda on supports. The Solidare Pergola also serves as an alternative to a terrace awning, in case that it is installed against a weak wall.
